

Barry has been looking after my garden(s) for about 15 years.

Finding him was like coming across water in the desert – until then I'd had gardeners who knew everything about plants but were hopeless at actually doing the work; I'd had gardeners who could do the work but dug up all my best plants in the process; and I'd had gardeners who could do neither and spent most of the morning chatting. The thing about Barry is that he knows all there is to know about garden design & plants, but also works more quickly and efficiently than anyone else I've ever come across. He also knows all kinds of wonderful people, like the lady who weaves willow fences and the best person to lay a new path. He always has wonderful suggestions about the right plant for that difficult position in the garden; he always comes when he says he'll come; and if some disaster occurs unexpectedly, he will always come and see what he can do about fixing it for me – in other words, he is the Batman of gardens!

I would unhesitatingly recommend Barry to anyone who is looking for someone to design or look after their garden.
